Minimally invasive surgical procedures are reducing the morbidity of brain surgery while increasing the diagnostic accuracy and precision of intracranial pathology. However, access to the brain requires great effort, use of cutting instruments for tissue retraction, and the risk of injury to the brain, which are not currently automated or optimal. We have developed a robotic surgical system that overcomes many of these limitations by providing automated insertion, cutting, retracting, and dilation of a brain biopsy needle. We have also designed a device for intraoperative image guided neurosurgery that integrates this needle biopsy system with a frameless stereotactic localization system and electromagnetic navigational tracking technology. In order to enhance our previous work and provide a potential alternative to frameless stereotactic localization, we will extend our methodology to a more general approach to image-guided neurosurgery. Our overall goal is to develop the automated insertion of a neurobiopsy needle for accurate and efficient sampling of brain tumors and biopsies. This will provide a method for both intraoperative and minimally invasive approaches to tissue sampling and sampling of deep seated tumors. The specific aims are to (1) design and build a novel automatic biopsy device, (2) investigate clinical performance with image guidance and electromagnetic tracking, and (3) investigate the effectiveness of intracranial tissue sampling. This project is a collaboration between the University of Pennsylvania, Hershey Medical Center, and the University of Pittsburgh. This project is designed to evaluate and provide a prototype system to guide image-guided neurosurgery. In addition, we will investigate the current and future role of minimally invasive brain

I'd like to have a function return true if the field is filled out, and if not, return an error. But I can't get it to work. I've tried using "filled" instead of "filled_out" and that worked to validate the field, but now when I delete a value in the field, it still says it's filled in (tried filling out both names, email, phone, etc). I've also tried replacing true and false in the function with a boolean, but that didn't work either. I'm basically trying to do this to validate the fields: if (array_key_exists('fname', $request->filled())) { $name = $request->fname; } if (array_key_exists('lname', $request->filled())) { $name = $request->lname; } if (array_key_exists('email', $request->filled())) { $email = $request->email; } if (2edc1e01e8
